

I believe the proposed changes to allow greater concentration of media control in fewer hands threaten the free and independent press, which is critical to a vibrant democracy. The changes will limit the variety of voices that can be heard in television, radio and print media. This will silence independent voices in public policy debates and in music. I urge you to lengthen the period for public commentary and make this process more transparent to the citizens it will affect.